Today Coach Kinney will put his men through a stiff scrimmage and will continue with this kind of work throughout the remainder of the week.

A Burlington man who is said to have been the worse for liquor, wandered into Burnham's meadow Monday afternoon and fell in with Daniel Houghton, who guided the stranger into an unoccupied stone shed. When the man from Burlington came to his senses he missed a roll of $50 in bills and a gold watch. Reporting the alleged theft to the police, he described accurately the person known to the officers as Houghton. When Houghton was summoned before Grand Juror William Wishart and Chief of Police Sinclair last evening he admitted taking $50 and a gold watch from the man's pocket. Moreover, he asserted that the act was a Samaritan spirit which animated him when he became fully cognizant of the stranger's condition. The money and timepiece, he told the authorities, he had confided to the care of his wife. Last night $50 and the watch were restored to the police and Houghton was told to "come over" with the additional $10 before noon to-day.

Barre and Montpelier Dokies are to get together this week to discuss plans for entertaining the members of Snadah temple, No. 140, D. O. K. K., of this city sometime late in the fall. It is proposed to hold a ceremonial either in Barre or Montpelier as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, inasmuch as Dokies who attended the state Pythian convocation in Bellows Falls this year were compelled to forego the pleasure of mingling with the elect in a regular ceremonial.

Somewhere hereabouts to-day a peddler of the house of Israel is probably indebted to Alderman A. E. Bruce for his cargo of merchandise and next to that for his life. And after that, his horse. Mr. Bruce was motoring south near Montpelier Junction last evening shortly before 7 o'clock when he saw a peddler's outfit on the tracks just north of the station. Only a half-hour before the New England States Limited had passed that way and a freight train was due to pull through. Investigating, he found the driver asleep in his seat and the wheels of the vehicle securely locked between the rails. Hurriedly removing the peddler from his seat to a spot in the grass just beyond the danger zone, Alderman Bruce then tried in vain to release the wagon. That failing, he unhooked the horse and from the nearest farmhouse called the station in time to have a through freight stopped at the Junction. Trainers succeeded in removing the peddler's cart from the tracks and then the freight was permitted to proceed. Alderman Bruce left the peddler surveying his detached outfit from a coign of vantage outside the rails.
